RENNES, France, Sept. 5.—M. Labori telegraphed personal appeals to Emperor William and King Humbert to grant permission to Colonel Schwartzkoppen and Colonel Panizzardi, Genman and Italian military attaches in Paris in 1894, to come to Rennes to testify in the trial of Captain Dreyfus.

The appeals were couched in eloquent terms, invoking the assistance of their majesties in the name of justice France), and the latter informed the and humanity. They are quite supplementary to the formal application that will be made by the government commissary, Major Carriere. Both Schwartzkoppen and Panizzardi must consult their respective sovereigns before starting, but the counsel for Dreyfus fully expect them to arrive here, if they come at all, in time to give their testimony on Thursday, in which case the trial would probably conclude this week and the verdict be delivered on Friday or Saturday.

RENNES, France, Sept. 6.—The judges in the Dreyfus courtmartial deliberated over the application of M. Labori for an order upon the government commissary to request the French government to invite foreign governments to supply documents enumerated in the bordereau. It was unanimously decided to reject the application of M. Labori on the ground that the court did not consider itself competent to pronounce a judgment which might entail diplo-

In view of the rejection by the courtmartial of M. Labori's motion, the defense intend to issue subpoenas to Colonels Schwartzkoppon and Panizzardi. The subpoenas will be transmitted by the courtmartial, through the minister of war, the minister of justice and the minister of foreign affairs, successvely, and thence through the French ambassadors at Berlin and Rome.

Colonels Schwartzkoppen and Panizzardi can elect whether they shall appear before the courtmartial or make depositions before magistrates in their respective countries, in which latter case the depositions will be transmitted as evidence to the courtmartial through diplomatic channels. This probably means at least weeks of delay.

The examination of the secret espionage dossier mentioned by Captain Cuig net during Monday's sitting of the Dreyfus. courtmartial occupied the greater part of the secret session of the court.

Major Carriere here burst out with an extraordinary protest against Major Esterhazy's insinuation against Colonel

"I protest," he cried, "in the name and memory of Colonel Sandherr, against the insinuations introduced against him.

M. Labori, however, ignored this protest, which he styled "a ridiculous pretention." M. Labori then called upon General Roget to testity regarding letters received from Major Esterhazy since the opening of this trial.

He replied that he only opened one letter from Major Esterhazy, which he forwarded to Colonel Jouanst. General Roget added that he had declined to receive other letters.

M. Labori then asked Colonel Jouaust to have the letters read.

Colonel Jouaust at first declined, but accurate, after wrangling a while, gave way and consented that the letter should be read later.

General Roget then read the one Esterhazy letter which he admitted having opened. In this letter Major Esterhazy said he could not prove the existence of the alleged syndicate organized in the interest of Dreyfus, and complained that the general staff had refused to give him a fair hearing.

M. Labori then put a series of questions intended to bring out the fact that the general staff had made use of Major Esterhazy even after he was known to be unreliable.

M. Labori sought to question General Roget more closely on his statement that none of the generals of the general staff had any relations with Major Esterhazy, but Colonel Jouaust declined to allow further discussion. This led to another scene between the president of the courtmartial and counsel for the defense, M. Labori declaring that General Roget, who came here more as public prosecutor than as a witness, refused to reply to probing questions.

CHICAGO TO GET ENCAMPMENT.

Salt Lake City Also After It-President McKinley Attended Big Meeting-Also Visited Sampson's Fleet-Enthusiasm During the Great Parade.

Philadelphia, Sept. 6.—The actual business of the G. A. R. encampment began today at the Grand Opera House.

The fight for commander-in-chief continues, and each candidate still feels! sure that he will land a winner. Colonel Albert D. Shaw of Watertown, N. Y., seems to lead, with Comrade Leo Rassieur of St. Louis a good second. There was not much talk about the office of senior vice commander-inchief, the canvass for that office being rather quiet and it is not known who will get the place. M. Minton of Kentucky will probably be named for junior vice commander, while William H. Baker of Massachusetts seems to have the call for surgeon general-in-chief.

The contest among the cities for the holding of next year's encampment has narrowed down to Chicago and Salt Lake City. It is practically conceded that Chicago will be the winner.

·The committee on pensions of the national encampment met Tuesday and completed the report, around which the debate of the sessions is likely to center. It is said that, while the committee will suggest certain changes in the laws that now seem to be equivocal, and will cite instances of hardships that have come as a result of the interpretation of the law, it will not join in the denunciation of the pension commissioner, H. Clay Evans.

During the parade Tuesday, from the fronts of the buildings to the curb the people sere packed in a solid mass and even breathing was difficult. As a result of the crush about 400 men, women and children were overcome and | General Wagner Sent Regrets of Philataken from the crowd to various hospitals.

The visit of the president to the squadron proved to be the greatest marine spectacle ever seen here. It was the intention to have Mr. McKinley visit only the New York, but he grew so enthusiastic over the great fighters that he suddenly made up his mind to inspect all of them. Accordingly he visited the flagship New York, cruiser Brooklyn and the battleships Indiana, Massachusetts and Texas. It was his intention to also visit the cruiser Detroit, but much to his regret he was unable to do so on account of lack of time. There was almost a continuous roar of guns during the one and three-quarter hours that it took to inspect the vessels. In all, 462 guns were fired by the squadron in president's salutes. On the New York and Indiana the men acted as they do in battle. The president was much interested. The return of the president to the shore was an inspiring one. The Texas was moored furthest up the river, and the presidential party had to pass each of the great vessels on its return to shore. The river was alive with craft crowded to their utmost capacity and a great noise was being made. As the barge neared the flagship the signal was given to salnte, and six big ships belched forth a terrific salute. Every man and officer on the ships stood at tention and the bands added to the din by playing "Hail to the Chief." Tae barge was stopped while the salute was being fired, and after it had ceased the 12 brawny sailors pulled for the shore.

A noticeable feature of the visit to the fleet was the president's cordial greeting of the men on each ship. He never once forget the "boys," and never once forget the "boys," bowed to them upon boarding and leaving the ships.

Enthusiasm was rampant last night. Wherever President McKinley appeared he received a tremendous ovation, particularly at the Academy of Music, where the Grand Army was officially welcomed to the city and state by Mayor Ashbridge and Governor Stone. General Sickles was already seated

THE BLOCKADE OF LUZON.

Way to Shut Off Rebels' Sources of Supplies and Ammunition Causing Considerable Concern.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The matter of making an effective blockade in the Philippines, and especially around the island of Luzon, so as to prevent the insurgents from obtaining ammunition and supplies, is one that is giving the administration considerable concern. It has not been dedmed feasible to proclaim a blockade, as it would indicate a state of war and possibly open a way to the recognition of the incurgents.

Whether or not it is feasible to attack, subdue and garrison all the ports of Luzon which might serve as ports of supply for the Filipinos has not yet been determined.

The president has been advised that the navy should be utilized.

At every port a navai vessel could be stationed, and under the military law of the island every incoming vessel could be made to exhibit its manifest. One trouble about carrying out this plan is the fact that there is not a sufficient number of light draught vessels to go into all the places where the Fili-pinos can receive their supplies.

Home Coming Heroes Are Greeted On Their Return From Fighting In the Far East 41. Some Impressive

BY LIEUTENANT H. R. GAHAN.

Home coming volunteers from the Philippines have been arriving in large numbers at San Francisco during the past six weeks. A few are still in the far east, waiting for transports or fighting fever in the hospitals, but the greater part of the survivors of the big army of citizen soldiers which crossed the ocean last winter have come home.

The people of San Francisco have greeted each returning regiment with a hearty welcome. Wat of course the warmest and most enthusiastic reception was reserved for the California soldiers, who were the last to leave sidio grounds until the discharges and other papers could be made out. This has not only facilitated matters, but has given the volunteers a chance to recover from the effects of their long sea voyage.

While the ocean trip has been on the whole a beneficial one to the war worn soldiers, tired out after months of hard campaigning, the confinement on a crowded transport is bound to be mated that the Nebraska regiment weighed 10.000 pounds more when it marched down the gangplank at San Francisco than when the boys went aboard at Manila.

The Presidio camp is an ideal one for the purpose. It has been established so long that all the little conveniences which go to make tent living comfortable have become fixtures. The tents, instead of being pitched on the naked ground, are all furnished with neat board floors. The company streets are well laid out and each furnished with a good supply of water. Some of the regiments have gone back to the same spots which they occupied last year, when they were composed of raw militia. Now they are veteran regiments, each one of them having earned its share of glory in the

As the parading column swung into Market street, San Francisco's principal thoroughfare, it was in three distinct parts, quite noticeable because a body of smartly dressed and hearty looking men all in army blue. They were the Third artillery regulars from the Presidio, detailed by Major General Shafter as the government escort to the battle scarred volunteers. People who did not know scanned their ruddy faces and remarked;

"Well, they do not look so badly used up.'

But in a moment they realized their mistake when there came swinging along company after company of slim, lithe young fellows, with thin, tanned cheeks, weather worn campaign hats, faded khaki trousers and leggings, old blue flannel shirts and carrying dingy Springfield rifles and rolls of much used blankets over their coatless shoulders, while battered haversacks and canteens bung about their loins.

The real fighters could not be mistaken. Young Colonel Mulford, who went away a major, rode at their head. and close behind came the regimental band, playing with a spirit of genuine gladness that awakened a sympathetic something in every hearer.

At the head of the Utah artillery rode Major Grant, who has already been asked to take the Republican nomination for mayor of Salt Lake City. His commanding figure and bearded face attracted instant atten-

Similar scenes to this are reproduced on a smaller scale when the regiments are broken up into companies. Each city and town prepares a special reception to the company which it sent to make up the regiment. So that in at least four states there are folks who just now think more of thin faced fellows in worn khaki uniforms than of the common affairs of life-those affairs which are of importance to bread earners, but which do not stir the heart at all.

THE BOY ON THE FARM.

How to Train and Develop Such Sturdy Young Americans. When an able-bodied young man, with no strong bent in other directions, has a distaste for farm life, it must be owing to one or both of two things, if his father is a successful former; either the home life is dry, narrow, uninteresting-few books, little company, no amusements, cheap clothing, ugly furniture—the main object of living being to get and save money; or the young man is so unfortunate as to be treated by his father as though he were still a child, incapable of thinking or acting for himself, who ought to be grateful for the chance of doing a man's work for his board. The average young man wants the chance to earn money and the privilege of doing what he pleases with the money after it is earned. Give im the opportunity to do this on the farm, with a pleasant home, and nine times out of ten, I believe that he will appreciate the advantages of farm life. He will, for the first time, perhaps,

If a man is selfish and dictatorial, unsympathetic, wholly forgetful of his own younger days, it would be strange, indeed, if his children grew up with much affection for their home or their father's occupation. I knew a man, of a different stamp, who had four boys. He thought a great deal of them, loved to have them with him, was interested in their pursuits, and anxious that they should be successful. He treated them, even when they were very small as though they were rational beings. He expected them to work, trusted them with responsibilities, and sometimes deferred to their judgment. As a natural consequence, they thought everything of their father, and were never so happy as when they could be with him helpof the difference in the uniforms of the ing him. They were regular little workmen. First came a rollicking band and ers, wanting to do everything he did. proud of pleasing him, interested in all farming operations, bright, wide-awake, observant, and full of life. It seems to me that this is the way to treat a boy on the farm-unselfishly, wisely, sympathetically. Not trying to see how much work can be got out of him for nothing before he is 21, but how he can best be helped and guided to become independent, useful, successful and happy.

Fresia Refracta Alba.

This charming winter-blooming bulb is more easily managed than almost any other in the window garden, and it has many characteristics that endear it to flower-lovers. Both the plant and flower are peculiarly graceful in form, and the latter has a fragrance resembling and quite as delicious as that of the finest tea roses. The flowers are a creamey-white in color, the majority marked with rich yellow blotches on the lower petals They are arrange on a spike, and open in succession beginning with the lower ones. As each flower remains perfect for some days, a single plant will be in bloom for a long time. They are especially valuable for cutting, as the buds open in water quite as readily as when a part of the plant

Dry bulbs are, however, to be procured from seedsmen in the summer and fall, a good quality costing about 25 cents per dozen. They are best planted during July, August and September. Any good garden soil, enriched with decomposed cow manure, and made open with sand or leaf-mold, will grow them TUESDAYS perfectly. Using a five-inch pot, plenty of drainage should be placed in the bottom, and then filled to within an inch ; of the top with soil. Insert the bulbs, ! the larger end down, so that the upper part is covered to the depth of one-half inch. The bulbs should be grouped near the centre, say one-half inch apart, and five can be grown in this sized pot. After watering thoroughly, set the pots away in a shaded place, and while not allowing them to dry out entirely, not a great amount of water should be this point they will require about the same treatment as other house-plants. removing to the windows before hard frosts. It will be an advantage to give them a strong light, while growing as cool as convenient. After flowering the foliage begins to turn yellow, when water may be withheld and the pots set away and kept dry until time to replant the next season. Our readers will fird this to be one of the most beautiful and useful additions to their winter window gardens that can be provided.

Cooling Loaves of Bread,

An authority on the chemistry of foods cautions housewives against cooling loaves of bread too rapidly after taking them from the oven. "Much of the souring of bread," says Dr. Woods, "is doubtless due to lack of care during cooling. Owing to the high water contents and the large amount of nitrogenous substances and sugar which bread contains, it is especially, while warm, a good soil for the development of various kinds of molds and bacteria A. loaf of bread," he adds, "hot from the oven, taken into a poorly ventilated room filled with people will become sour in the course of two or three hours.

Early Winter Flowering.

Cineraria seed for early winter flowers should be sown at once, and another planting made in August. Extreme care i to prevent both drying out and damping-off should be taken while the plants are young, and they should never be allowed to suffer for water or from the depredations of insects at any time during their existence. When properly grown there is no more beautiful and brilliant winter-blooming plant.

A GREAT FAIR.

"We've done our best to make it a good thing and a big thing. I hope the people will feel themselves justified in lowing excited the most interest: saying that we have succeeded." So spoke Mayor Jacob J. Wise, president spring. of the Massillon Merchants' Street Fair association, at one o'clock Monday aftermoon. Then he pushed the button. the gates flew open, the thousands surged and the fair was on. People had come from everywhere. All the streets about the East Tremont street entrance were filled. It was almost impossible to make progress in any direction. After the opening of the gates the crowd transalong the line, as it passed from one display to another, one heard nothing but expressions of admiration and wonder.

PAST AND PRESENT.

The Street Fair Association as It Was and as It Is.

The street fair project, when it was first suggested to Massillon business men by Mayor Wise, in May, 1898, was not enthusiastically received. Everybody talked about the big expense, the immense amount of work and the uncertainty of the weather, all failing to consider the great advertisement it would be for the city and the firms represented at the exposition, and few believing that it meant new and increased business. Again and again Mayor Wise attempted to get the merchants and manufacturers together to discuss the matter, and the numerous failures would have discouraged anyone less determined. Finally, on June 21, 1898, a small number of business men, among whom a sort of lukewarm interest had been aroused. assembled in the mayor's court room. and a temporary organization was effected, with Mayor Wise as its president. Later it became a permanent institution, under the name of the Massillon Business Men's Street Fair Association. Gradually citizens were brought to real-1ze the great benefits to be derived from the fair, and gave the association a support that swept away all obstacles and assured an unqualified success. And the fair was a success, albeit financially the association received small reward. The 1898 fair was held on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, September 21, 22, 23 and 24. On Wednesday alone was there fair weather, and the crowd on that day was probably the largest the town has ever seen. Rain every day thereafter greatly reduced the attend-

Boss McLean said in a recent interin the state during the campaign, but mist. that he did not expect to make any speeches. No one expects speeches from the Democratic candidate for governor, but what can be done with money and

No, no one can doubt it, and thereby comes the assurance that although Mc-Lean is not lacking in the means requisite to equip the Democrats of Ohio for an effective fight, he will be utterly unable to change the political situation in the state where business interests are solidly opposed to any revival of the sixteen-to-one fallacy for which the Zanesville convention declared.

In the speech made by Mr. Atkinson's "great and good friend," Senor Emilio Aguinaldo, to his followers on the anniversary of his proclamation that the Filippinos had set up a republic of which he was chief, he says among other things: "Let us strengthen our hearts: we are in our own country. We shall see that at last the great American nation will acknowledge the right which is on our side, and that the doc- ness into strength, listlessness into trine of the great Monroe, that America energy, brain-fag into mental power is for the Americans, is not forgotten, just as we affirm that the Philippines are for the Filippinos." This speech needs no interpretation. Even the Atkinsonites can see the effect of their propaganda. at Rennes last month were interesting enough, to be sure; but they were, comparatively speaking, of transient importance. France is a civilized nation with noble codes of law and a highly trained; body of lawyers. French trials are, however, conducted in such a way that Interesting News from many aspects of them seem worse than ridiculous to those accustomed to the methods of the United States and England. Thus the witnesses at the Dreyfus trial were in the main given freedom to tell what they knew in their own way, WILMOT'S GREATEST DAY and were allowed to assert their opinions, beliefs, prejudices, distikes, and emotional points of view as if these were Strasburg's Council Asked to Grant a really matters of evidence. Under our rulings such digressions would be severely repressed as irrelevant. And yet it does not follow that our method is so superior to the French in all respects. Our rules of evidence are so technical that it often happens that the ends of substantial justice are wholly defeated a witness would be glad to state and which would clear up the case, is ruled out. In an American trial the lawyers seem to be playing a certain kind of game, with the judge as umpire, under elaborate and extremely technical rules which nobody can hope altogether to understand except the professionals. The witness must under no circumstances tell in his own way what he really knows, thinks, or feels about the case, but must answer the lawyer's questions in ways which do not violate the technical rules of evidence. In France, however, it is the judge, not the opposing counsel, who conducts the trial, and what the judge wants of each witness is the revelation of whatever may be in that witness's mind respecting the subject under investigation. It then becomes the subsequent business of the magistrate to get at such grains of legal evidence as may be found in the chaft of the witness's rambling discourse. It would be a rather bold proposition to assert that under our American method for $3,000. Both parties have relatives substantial justice is rendered in a larger percentage of cases than under the French method. A GREAT DAY AT WILMOT.

WILMOT, Sept. 5 .- The most lively time that this place bas ever had took place here last Saturday. The Wilmot band gave a day of sport, and a concert and festival during the entire day and evening. The programme of music was the finest ever heard in this part of the country, being rendered by the Mt. Eaton, Winesburg and Wilmot bands combined, assisted by Prof. Yeagla, of Massillon. The cake walk by the colored people was the closing feature of the evening, and was highly satisfactory. The crowd in attendance was estimated at two thousand, yielding an income of $165-being the banner festival of the season. The arrangements to take care of the crowd were excellent, and speaks well for the thrift and enterprise of our excellent band.

The ball game in the afternoon between West Lebanon and Wilmot was warmly contested. The Lebanon boys are a fine set of young players, who in time may make a good team. The Wilmot team was composed mostly of high school boys who had never played in a match game before. Truly, politics does make "strange bed fellows," for who would have ever dreamed of the Hon. John Sherman, the political iceberg, and the Hon. John P. Jones, the political fire eater, being huddled up together and serving on the same committee, that of combinations and trusts? In this connection we notice that the Pittsburg combine, immediately upon taking charge last Saturday, advanced the price of coal from fifteen to twenty-five cents per ton to the retailer, and the retailer made a uniform advance of twenty cents per ton, whereas the laborer that produces the ton of coal does not get one fraction of a cent advance. Mr. A. B. Rickard, after graduating from the Navarre high school, entered the normal department of Mt. Union college, finished the course and received his diploma. He then took up the classical course which he had almost completed, having finished all the prescribed work, except a small amount of Greek. During his entire college course he made a specialty of Latin.

The writer well remembers the afternoon spent with him just before he entered on his last term in college. The conversation naturally turned to his studies, and he translated a page from his Latin text to give us an idea of the work. John W. Eberhardt Held up by Highwaymen.

Swears That Walter Wissmar Was One of His Assailants-Oscar Slusser Otto Hartle and Others Picked up, on Various Charges.

On an affidavit made by John W. Eberhardt, the East Main street saloonkeeper, Walter Wissmar was Sunday evening arrested by Policemen McGuire and Ertle. Eberhardt alleges that while he was walking in Muskingum street in their praises of Massillon as a show within seeing distance of Mt. Ararat. between 12 and 1 o'clock, Sunday morning, he was held up by three men, one of whom was Wissmar. They beat him until he was practically unconscious, and then robbed him of thirty-six dollars in money and certificates of deposit representing forty-five dollars. Albert Ellis, who lives in Muskingum street, was the first man to reach Eberhardt after the highwaymen had left. He assisted him home. Eberhardt resides in Muskingum street.

Ocras Slusser was arrested by Police-Ernest Burkhart, who makes his man Brownsberger, Saturday night, on Erie street saloon. He will be given a hearing at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. The woman is badly injured. She says Slusser struck and kicked her.

A colored man named Pendexter is in the city prison. He was picked up on suspicion by Policemen McGuire and Brownsberger Sunday evening.

Otto Hartle, found attempting to dispose of a lady's black lace frame hat Wednesday morning and placed where Saturday evening, was arrested by Policeman Getz. He was charged with vaspondent. He said he was sorry he tried grancy and peddling, and was fined one to kill himself, however, and would not dollar and costs. The hat was evidently stolen somewhere. It has two tips, two wings, black ribbons and violets.

OUR MOTHER'S FLOWERS

THEY ARE NOW SELDOM SEEN IN GARDENS.

Old Garden Favorites Whose Beauty and Usefulness Commend Their Cultivation -Valuable Information as to Their

One of the strange phases of modern floriciluire is that many of the old garden flowers of our mother's and grandmother's days are now seldom seen, although for real worth and usefulness their place has not and cannot be well supplied. We refer more particularly to the class of plants known as hardy perennials and biennials, some of which go along year after year with little attention when once planted, and most of which are easily propagated as the majority of annuals. Quite a number bloom early in the spring, and brighten up the garden borders and corners when they would otherwise appear

It is to be noted with satisfaction that renewed interest is being taken in these old-fashioned flowers and the revival has stirred the specialists to improving them in many respects, so that with several we have larger and betterformed blossoms and more interesting markings and colors. This improvement will no doubt continue for some time, and will add to the interest of growing them, and it is to be hoped will permanently bring them back into our planted the previous summer. Among those especially suited for amateur cultivation, and which will give the best reward for the labor expended upon them, are the following:

Alyssum saxtile.—Producing early in spring numerous large sprays of bright golden yellow flowers on a dwarf, bushy plant. Excellent for edging the borders or for carpeting the ground beneath taller growing plants.

Aluglegia (columbines).—One to three feet high. These combine at once an elegance of foliage and beauty and interest of flowers exceeded by few other plants. There are both single and double Missoms, of various shades of red, ellow and white, of very striking and

Some of these new flowers have brought the originator as much as $5,000 for the single plant. A pure white gladiolus would doubtless bring as much, and there are many experts who are trying to get such a flower. But it is not the expert always that gets the prize. Some patient gardener, growing flowers for their beauty, and sowing the seeds of this plant, might happen to get this desirable variety, or some other as valuable. This is eminently work for the farm girls, who by some reading and study, finding what is wanted, might easily strike a rich prize, and if not the work itself would fully repay all the time and labor spent in it.

Lilium candidum is missed from many a garden with feelings of the deepest regret. This is the lily of all lilies in point of true beauty and loveliness, and it is one of the very few varieties in this large and respectable family of plants that can not be taken up and transplanted at any time without fear of loss. From many friends we hear the complaint that this lily will not grow in their gardens, that they have bought it every spring, and it will not live and grow. This is quite possible, friends, simply because you do buy it at that time. This bulb should not ever be caught out of ground in the spring. The only proper time to buy and plant this lily is in July or August, its period of rest. This builb commences active growth in September and is then making preparations for its next summer flowers. During this period, and until the flowers have come and gone again, the plant must not be disturbed .- Gardening.

It is interesting to note the number of arrivals of gardeners in the United States from other countries. During the year ending June 30, 9184, which is the latest period for which the statistics have been made up, there arfrom Belgium, two; from Denmark, nineteen; from France, thirteen; from Germany, one hundred and sixty; from Greece, sixteen; from Italy, twentyfive, from the Netherlands, twenty-two, one a woman; from Norway, five; from Russia, three; from Sweden, twenty; from Switzerland, fourteen; from Tur-Colombia, two; from China, seven; from Japan, three; from Australia, three; from the Hawaiian Islands, one, making a total of five hundred and sixtynine, five hundred and thirty-five of whom, including one woman, were under forty, and the remainder over forty years of age.

COUNTRY HOUSE LORE

Suggestions for the Beauty-Loving and Facts About the Breeds Favored by the Pleasure Seeking.

Truly are we inclined to value least those things that are most common to us, or most easy to obtain. City people long for the cool shade of the country in summer, and one would suppose that ed with trees to serve as a protection in summer and winter; but such is not the case. A large per cent. of farm homes are poorly protected by shade trees, so far as my observation extends. Many houses have no large tree near them, many have only one, and comparatively few have an abundance. I think a growth of shrubbery and small varieties of trees, does not take the place of large keeps air out and dampness in. Shrub. bery should be in clumps, and not up close to the house. The shade should be furnished by large trees with They should form huge umbrellas, permitting the air to pass freely about the buildings, and should not stand so close that sunlight cannot strike the ground at some time in the day, or so near the dwelling that they keep the roof shaded all the time. Some sunlight is a good

There should be enough shade to cool the atmosphere in the house and on the varieties grow rapidly, and while they are not at their best for a generation, they soon do some good, and people should plant for the future. When there are no trees, a dozen should be planted where four large trees will be wanted, and then thinned out as growth requires it. Forest trees may often be saved by removing the top. In this way, I have saved several near the house. A maple has twice shown deed in the season, the more distance cided indications of death, and each time the top was removed. To-day it the approach of cold weather, cover the has a beautiful new growth of branches in the top, and appears full of vitality. ter give air whenever the thermometer A beech was apparently gone, when a timely removal of the top revived it.

Combined Workshop and Toolhouse.

Every gardener and farmer should have a workshop and tool house. The accompanying illustration shows a good plan for such a building. It has two large doors for driving in with carts, cultivators, etc., and one large pair of doors on the back side so that the team may be unhitched and driven out handily, or hitched in and the cart, or cultivator, driven out without back.

ing or turning around. In the end of the building is a workshop where many garden appliances can be made and many necessary repairs executed. There is no chamber, but simply a loft, partially floored, where may be put up small tools that are out of season, lumber for construction and repairs, and many odd and ends that would otherwise be constantly in the way.-American Agriculturist.

Plowing in Clover.

Clover should not be plowed in until the second year, when it is fully grown. The bulk of the valuable matter in a clover crop is not produced until the rived from Bohemia, two gardeners; second year, when the roots are as them. So that a good practice is to cut the first crop of the second year for hay, and let the plant seed, when it is mature and ripe, and in the best condition for improving the land. The second key, two; from England, one hundred in this way with seed, which will grow and forty-six; from Scotland, thirty- when the land is turned back again ht; from Ireland, fifty-four; from some years after in the regular rotation. Then the clover will grow considerably by the time when the land is plowed in the spring, when the best crop to follow is potatoes, and after this wheat. If manure is to be used on the potatoes. it will be desirable to spread it during the winter, when there is time and opportunity for it.

FANCY GEESE,

Among the standard breeds of geese which are favored by fanciers is the Gray Toulouse, which is named for the city in France of that name. OUR NEW DESTROYERS. High Speed Fighting Craft Which Will Strengthen the Navy.

The launching of the 30 knot torpedo boat, or "destroyer," Bailey calls attention to what is being done toward strengthening this important arm of our navy. The Bailey is one of a number of the high speed craft which are being added to the sea fighting force of Uncle Sam, among the others being the Dahlgren, the Craven and the Stringham.

This style of craft is one of the mechanical wonders of the present generation. The general name of torpedo boats is applied to all these swift. death dealing vessels, though there are some essential differences in their construction and displacement. Among naval men, however, the larger and more powerful of this type of warships are known as "destroyers."

The four vessels just mentioned are well along toward completion and by the end of the year will be ready to go on the active list. Properly two of them, the Dahlgren and the Craven. are torpedo boats of exceptional speed, while the Bailey and the Stringham are centainly entitled to the designation of "destroyers," even though no such official classification exists.

Aside from the features common to both types, the "destroyer" earns its title by reason of its greater speed and especially the power to maintain that speed in the face of a considerable sea and then to the farther reach and greater might of her guns. A craft that may be able to do her 30 knots on a smooth stretch, if she be light, will certainly fall below that in a bumping seaway which brings her partly to a halt with each wave. She must be heavy enough to maintain her momentum, otherwise she is likely to prove an extravagauce and of questionable value in time of stress and conflict.

The construction of the Bailey was authorized by act of congress, approved March 2, 1897, and four months later she was awarded to her builders, the Gas Engine and Power company of Morris Heights, N. J., the contract price being $220,000. She is built after the style of the English destroyers and outclasses a majority of Great Britain's boasted destroyer flotilla.

To use an ancient, piratical description, she is, like others of this class, "a long, low and rakish eraft" and will be able to hold her own in the teeth of a pretty good gale. She is 200 feet long, having a maximum beam of 19 feet and a displacement of 235 tons. She has a total bunker capacity of 50 tons and a correspondingly big radius of action.

Like the other torpedo boats, she will be driven by two triple expansion engines operating twin screws and capable of developing an energy of 7,200 horsepower when making 400 turns a minute and inducing a speed of 30 knots. Steam at an impulse of 240 pounds to the square inch will be supplied by four Thornycroft water tube boilers divided into pairs and in two separate water tight compartments. She has comfortable accommodations for 43 persons, officers and enlisted men, and is lighted by electricity, artificially ventilated and provided with all the conveniences that can be stored away within her snug interior.

As a torpedo boat destroyer she carries a battery of four semiautomatic, rapid fire 6 pounders, mounted in commanding positions, and as a torpedo boat her two 18 inch Whitehead torpedo tubes will make her an unpleasant neighbor for the mightiest of an enemy's battleships, while her ability to keep the sea will make her that much more dangerous.

The Stringham, which was authorized by the same act of congress as that which made provision for the Bailey, is a sister ship of the latter. Her armament is practically the same as that of the Bailey, and she is built upon substantially the same lines, though in some respects she is regarded as a superior boat. At least she cost more money. She was awarded at the contract price of $236,000 to the Harlan & Hollingsworth company of Wilmington, Del. Her dimensions are: Length, 225 feet; extreme beam, 22 feet, and her maximum draft but " feet. The Stringham was launched some time ago and will be ready for sea service in a few months.

COMMANDS IN SOUTH AFRICA

New Chief of the British Forces an Experienced Campaigner.

The supplanting of Major General Butler by Lieutenant General Sir Frederick W. E. Forestier-Walker in the command of the British forces of South Africa indicates that England regards the Boer situation as critical, for the latter is one of the best generals in the service.

Comparatively speaking, Lieutenant General Walker is a young man. He is 54 years old and one of the youngest officers of his rank. He is a Scots guardsman, having joined that regiment as an ensign in 1862 and left it as lieutenant colonel in 1886.

His main foreign and war service has been in South Africa, where he was for several years assistant military secretary. He served in the Kaffir war of 1878, for which he received the C. B., and his conduct also earned him mention in the dispatches. During the Zulu war of 1879 he was the principal staff officer to No. 1 column, was present at the action of Inveyage and formed one of the force shut up in Ekowe. After the relief he served on the line of communication and was in command of Fort Pearson and the lower Tugela district.

He next accompanied the Bechuanaland expedition, 1884-5, in the capacity of assistant adjutant and quartermaster general, and for his services therein received the C. M. G. He commanded in Egypt from 1890 to 1895 and was recently in command of the western district. His promotion to K. C. B. came to him in 1894.

TEACHER OF PATRIOTISM.

Grand Army Man Who Distributed Flags In Porto Rico.

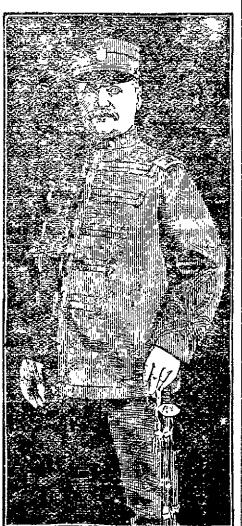

One of the lions at the coming G. A R. encampment at Philadelphia will len C. Bake-fayette Post, No. 140, department of New York. Although an old member herb; after the clover has become wiltof the order, this will be his debut as fore the leaves have had time to dry a national character, greatness thrust upon him by the Spanish war.

Briefly, the amiable colonel was the flag commissioner sent by Lafayette post to distribute its munificent and patriotic gift of 600 United States flags to the public schools of Porto Rico. The unique mission to our new possession was undertaken solely at the expense of Lafayette post and its commissioner. The post supplied the flags and Colonel Bakewell went at his own expense to deliver them to the schools and authorities and to impress upon the people, more especially the children, the meaning of the gift.

The colonel found the Porto Ricans ready to take lessons in patriotism from the new people with whose destinies theirs are now allied. It would have been difficult to find any one better fitted for the duty of flag commissioner than Comrade Bakewell. He is still a young man for a veteran and has a fine, soldierly ap-

GOOD RECIPES.

Salmon Box-Line a brick mould or bread pan with cooked rice. Fill the centre with cold boiled salmon, flaked and seasoned with salt and pepper and a very little nutmeg. Put a layer of rice on top, and steam one hour. Turn out on a platter, and serve with egg

Egg Sauce-Melt two tablespoonfuls butter, add two tablespoonfuls flour, and pour on slowly one pint of hot water. Add one-half teaspoonful salt, onehalf saltspoonful pepper, two more tablespoonfuls butter, yolks of two eggs beaten slightly, and one teaspoonful lemon juice.

Fried Cucumbers-Pare and slice lengthwise two nice large cucumbers; dust with salt and pepper. Dip each piece carefully in beaten egg, then in crumbs, and fry in hot fat; not deep fat but just enough to cover well the bottom of pan. Serve hot with tomato catsup. Squash may be fried the same.

Steamed Fresh Mushrooms-Cut half pound of mushrooms into small pieces. Wash them in cold water, put them in a granite saucepan, and stand over a moderate fire. Cover and cook slowly for fifteen minutes, then add teaspoonful salt, and cook five minutes longer; turn into brown sauce.

Green Crops for Poultry,

Almost every poultry raiser has more or less land upon which crops may be grown that are especially liked by poultry. Obviously the providing of suitable food in variety is one of the important businesses of the poultry keeper; hence a few words upon that subject. Round turnips are a crop that can be sown any time, almost in August and yet be reasonably certain of producing a good yield. Turn over a piece of "run out" sod, harrow in a dressing of fine, rotted manure, and drill in seed in rows two or three feet apart in the row. Under such cultivation, the turnips will yield immensely of smooth, handsome roots; whereas, when sown broadcast as is common, plants are not thinned sufficiently and there are many small, inferior roots produced. Fowls like turnips, either boiled or raw, and this root should form the basin of the daily mash through the winter. So the poultryman wants lots of turnips and can hardly raise too many of them, as they are quite easily grown and of easy cultivation.

Cabbage is another crop the hens admire. The tender, succulent leaves of the cabbage afford a great delicacy to biddy in the winter season, when there is little choice of green food Cabbage plants may be set out in rich soil quite late in the season, and even if they do not head up, they will make large leaves that answer every purpose of fowl feeding. Manure land for cabbage with well-rotted barnyard manure, or else use fish and unleached wood ashes. Set plants two and a half feet apart in either direction, and use horse-hoe for cultivation, thus minimizing cost of growing the crop. Late in the fall, store the cabbage in cool cellars of outof-door pits, where they will be of easy access when needed for poultry feeding.

The fine clover rowen that springs up as a second crop on our meadows and mown lands should be considered as one of the crops to be especially cared be Colonel Al. for with a view of feeding it to poultry. Care is to be taken to cure it well, as | well, senior vice commander of La- late autumn weather is often unfavorable for properly drying any grass or and fall off; cover these cocks with caps, if you have any of those excellent articles, and after one night out the cocks may be shaken out and then drawn into the barn. When there is but a little second crop, it may be taken at once to the barn and spread upon poles in the loft, where it may take its time in curing, out of reach of any pernicious influence from rain or dew. This rowen is of great use all winter. Chop it up, boil it and mix with grain, and it gives the poultry a great variety.—Poultry Monthly.

> Protecting Vines 1 . om Striped Bettles. The worst enemy the cucumber, squash, pumpkin and melon vines have is the little striped beetle. It not only eats the pulp from the underside of the leaves but destroys the stalk, and if the soil is loose it eats the stalk below the ground; therefore it is a difficult matter to fight it with insecticides. For a garden where less than two dozen hills are planted, the safest and cheapest way to protect the vines is by a covering of mosquito netting or cheese cloth, cut into pieces 18 or 20 inches square. These, to add to their durability, should be first dipped in oil and wrung as dry as possible. Now take a niece of No. 12 or 14 wire,-galvanized if possible,—cut into 20-inch lengths, bend five inches of each end at right angles, and set them two inches into the ground at the corner of each hill, as seen at a a in the engraving. The netting is now spread over this frame. and the edges are covered with a little soil to keeep it in place. This thin covering, while admitting plenty of light and rain as it falls, also keeps out the little striped beetles. Cucumbers can thus be protected until they send out laterals, and even if the vines press against the top and sides it does not injure them. Put on the protectors just as the plants are breaking through the ground, removing them in about three weeks. Kept in a dry place when not in use they will do good service eight or ten years.

Cultivation of the Sauflower

In Russia the sunflower is extensively grown for the oil of the seeds. It is used for food and cooking, as olive oil has been. The cake left after expressing the oil is ground into meal for feeding cattle, for which it has been found very profitable. The cake meal bas 30 to 44 per cent. of proteine, 9 to 18 per cent. fat, and as, when sifted, the finer meal may be separated from the coarser there may be two qualities made of it, the fine meal being richest in proteins and less in fat, while the coarse is the opposite. This is on account of the easier expressing of the oil from the finest of the meal. A Russian immigrant into Minnesota is now occupied in growing this plant for the same use and has 100 acres planted this spring. The culture in Russia is very profitable every trace of the taint.

I was afflicted with a terrible blood disease, which was in spots at first, but afterwards spread all over my body. These soon broke out into sores, and it is easy to imagine the suffering I endured. Before I became convinced that the doctors could do no good. I had Spent a hundred dollars, which was really thrown away. I then tried various patent medicines, but they did not reach the disease. When I had finished my first bottle of S. S. S. I was greatly improved and was delighted with the result. The large red splotches on my chest began to grow paler and smaller, and before long disappeared entirely. I regained my lost weight, became stronger, and my appetite greatly improved. I was soon entirely well, and my skin as clear as a piece of glass.

JERSEY MEADOWS.

USES WHICH THIS SEEM NGLY WAST LAND IS PUT TO.

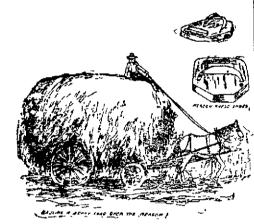

People Formerly Made a Living From These Murshes-How the Grasses Are Now Cut-Horses Are Shod With Plauks to Keep Them From Sinking.

To those who travel across them by rail either on occasional trips or regularly after the manner of commuters, the marshes between Jersey City and Newark, known as the "Jersey Meadows," seem nothing more than a vast area of low-lying, quaking mola.s brine soaked overgrown with charse grasses, reeds and cattails, and serving no useful purpose whatever-on utterly waste territory.

Tet in the past these meadows have been of great importance to the State of New Jersey. They have been surweyed and mapped under State authoraty with greater frequency than almost any other similar area within its boundaries; their improvement and proper management have been the ends sought by more than 400 State laws, the first of which was enacted in 1797.

Some Obstacles.

One of the greatest present obstacles to any concerted meadow reclamation movement is furnished by the form taken by those old-time allouments. Within certain bounds every settler was allowed to designate the location and shape of his meadow patch, and the result was that some took triangles, some squares, some tracts of irregular shape and some parallelograms. One allotment was more than a mile long and correspondingly narrow. while in many instances there were areas between tracts that no one took up at all. T-day no man living is able to trace the ownership of much of the meadow property, nor are there any records from which clear titles may ever be derived.

Gathering Marsh Hay.

Naturally, though the hardy setilers recked little of the troubles that might come to their descendants through maxed-up titles, but made the best use of the black grass they could. pasturing a part of it and cutting the remainder. And, while there are mighty few Jerseymen to-day who would dare attempt self-support on meadow land, there were then many farmers nearly all of whose meat came from cattle fattened on black grass; whose milch cows fed upon black grass; whose draught horses and oxen ate it the year round, and much of whose clothing and other necessities were bought with money got by selling the hav.

It was fortunate for their regular occupation of improving the uplands that the black grass required attention only at haying time. It was by all odds the busiest season of the year for the meadow holders; nearly every man able to swing a scythe turned out. and for days the meadows fairly swarmed with industrious, athletic Yankees, who mowed and drank rum. told stories and fought mosquitoes with the energy and enthusiasm that have always characterized American pioneers in all parts of the land. There are plenty of Newarkers now living who can remember when the meadows were dotted every August with long rows of little ricks of black grass hay, and in many shore localities it is a standard crop to this ! Ty. There are meadowlands in Staten Island Sound yielding black grass that are still cut over every year at a profit that warrants a valuation of $50 an acre for their territory, though no buildings stand upon them, and that is a higher rate than Jersey farm land would fetch on the average if placed on sale. Measured by that standard, the 20,000 meadow acres that naturally bear good black grass would be worth $1,000,000 to-day.

It is still out owls is certain. These birds are exand sold in limited quantities for ceedingly numerous on the meadows, packing though mostly driven out by though not often seen because of their "excelsior" and sawdust, but its other | night-time habits. Where they nest uses have been discontinued fore er. and stay daytimes is a mystery. No Its use by fron founders was rather one has heard of the finding of an curious. They twisted it into "hay Fopes" and male them the basis of the cords in cylindrical castings, covering the outside of the rope with Properly prepared the latter would resist the heat of melted iron admirably, but the bay rope would burn out, of course, leaving the clay porous and with a big hole through the centre. Thus it was easily broken out of the casting after it had cooled. No core superior to that of hay and clay has ever been discovered. but clay is much more costly now than formerly, and the cores used at present are of iron and sand.

pers contain sensational stories of meadow mosquitoes, the bills of one outlaws living on the meadows. Some sort being saw-toothed, those of anof these stories have been true, but other barbed as arrows are barbed. most of them have been fakes, and those of the third fashioned like Meadow life in the most favorable corkscrews.

circumstances is decidedly tough, owing to the interse heat of the summer, the raw, damp cold of the winter, and the enormous ferocity of the mosquitees in the season. S. Howell Jones, of Newark, who has made a other living man, says that aside from dockkeepers, factory watchmen and the like not half a dozen persons are living on the meadows to-day. The last outlaw disappeared three or four years ago. He occupied a hut built of odds and ends and grass, so located among wide and deep ditches that it could be approached from three directions only. He was suspected of many thefts and his arrest was often attempted, but he always managed to escape. Possibly he was only crazy and not a criminal; no one was ever certain that he stole, but he was suspectea, because no one could understand how he lived without stealing.

A Legend.

Despite the present general desertion of the meadows they formerly were frequented to such an extent that every ditch and every creek was named and the names are perpetuated on Mr. Janes's maps. Each of the names had a reason, of course, "Ned's Ditch" being so called from an Indian, "Wheeler Creek" from a family, and so on. The name of Black Stake Creek has a less commonplace origin. It is not far from the line between Elizabeth and Newark, and, the story one day in the middle of the eighteenth century. Baldwin had suffered much annoyance from mutinous negro captives on the voyage from Africa and his object in anchoring there was to punish the ringleader adequatestretched him naked on the ground, with his face to the sky, extended his arms and legs, and then tied them with rawhide thongs to four green chestnut stakes. There the negro was left without food or water till he died. His tortures must have been abrocious. For days his shricks and cries for help were heard by passers, but none dared to aid him, for the brutal captain's vessel was still anchored near, and he threatened dreadful punishment to any one who should thwart his design. The legend runs that the stakes, blackened by time and meadow fires. remained intact and erect for a full half century after the negro's miser-

Cutting the Grass,

They still cut some black grass over on the meadows, but only a few acres. This is the fault of the railroads. Black grass flourishes only where the store the cabbage in cool cellars of outtide can ebb and flow with regularity of-door pits, where they will be of easy about its roots, and this has been stopped by the embankments of the steel highways that now criss-cross the pongy plain in all directions. You would hardly think it probable, but most of the meadow mowing is done though special appliances have to be devised to make machine mowing possible. The trouble is not with the machines, but with the horses. To prevent miring they have to be shod with broad, platterlike wooden shoes, which are fastened to their hoofs with iron bands.

The Fiddler Crabs.

Aside from water snakes, which abound there in great numbers, and muskrats, which live on the river banks and occasionally destroy the dykes, the chief inhabitants of the meadows to-day are fiddler crabs. meadow mice and owls. The fiddler crabs are millions in number and they undoubtedly do a good deal to prevent the rapid formation of soil from deposits of mud, for their burrowings literally honey-comb the entire morass. The meadow mice and a race peculiar to such localities, and

Home of the Mosquitoes.

The Jersey meadow mosquitoes are the worst to be found anywhere on the footstool with the possible exception of one or two localities in long Island's north shore. It requires the consumption of fabulous quantite. I the sort of whisky known as Jersey lightning to enable a meadow grass haymaker to persist in a whole day's work among the swarming, singing, stinging pests, and besides drinking much whiskey he is frequently obliged to swathe his neck and jowle with cloth for protective purposes. Meadow haymakers declare in all seriousness Every once in a while the newspa-that there are three breeds of Jersey

GOOD RÉCIPES.

Salmon Box-Line a brick mould or bread pan with cooked rice. Fill the centre with cold boiled salmon, flaked and seasoned with salt and pepper and a very little nutmeg. Put a layer of closer study of the meadows than any rice on top, and steam one hour. Turn out on a platter, and serve with egg sauce.

> Egg Sauce-Melt two tablespoonfuls butter, add two tablespoonfuls flour, and pour on slowly one pint of hot water. Add one-half teaspoonful salt, onehalf saltspoonful pepper, two more tablespoonfuls butter, yolks of two eggs beaten slightly, and one teaspoonful lemon juice.

> Fried Cucumbers-Pare and slice lengthwise two nice large cucumbers; dust with salt and pepper. Dip each piece carefully in beaten egg, then in crumbs, and fry in hot fat; not deep fat but just enough to cover well the bottom of pan. Serve hot with tomato catsup. Squash may be fried the same.

> Steamed Fresh Mushrooms-Cut half pound of mushrooms into small pieces. Wash them in cold water, put them in a granite saucepan, and stand over a moderate fire. Cover and cook slowly for fifteen minutes, then add teaspoonful salt, and cook five minutes longer; turn into brown sauce.

Green Crops for Poultry.

Almost every poultry raiser has more or less land upon which crops may be grown that are especially liked by poultry. Obviously the providing of suitable food in variety is one of the important businesses of the poultry keeper; hence a few words upon that subgoes, a slave ship, commanded by Cap- ject. Round turnips are a crop that tain Baldwin, anchored near its mouth can be sown any time, almost in August and yet be reasonably certain of producing a good yield. Turn over a piece of "run out" sod, harrow in a dressing of fine, rotted manure, and drill in seed in rows two or three feet apart in the row. Under such cultivation, the turnips will yield immensely of smooth, ly. He took the poor wretch ashore, handsome roots; whereas, when sown broadcast as is common, plants are not thinned sufficiently and there are many small, inferior roots produced. Fowls like turnips, either boiled or raw, and this root should form the basin of the daily mash through the winter. So the poultryman wants lots of turnips and can hardly raise too many of them, as they are quite easily grown and of easy cultivation.

Cabbage is another crop the hens admire. The tender, succulent leaves of the cabbage afford a great delicacy to biddy in the winter season, when there is little choice of green food. Cabbage plants may be set out in rich soil quite late in the season, and even if they do not head up, they will make large leaves that answer every purpose of fowl feeding. Manure land for cabbage | ni." with well-rotted barnyard manure, or else use fish and unleached wood ashes. Set plants two and a half feet apart in either direction, and use horse-hoe for cultivation, thus minimizing cost of growing the crop. Late in the fall, access when needed for poultry feeding.

The fine clover rowen that springs up as a second crop on our meadows and mown lands should be considered as one of the crops to be especially cared for with a view of feeding it to poultry. able for properly drying any grass or herb; after the clover has become wilted, rake up and put in small cocks, before the leaves have had time to dry and fall off; cover these cocks with caps, if you have any of those excellent articles, and after one night out the cocks may be shaken out and then drawn into the barn. When there is but a little second crop, it may be taken at once to the barn and spread upon poles in the loft, where it may take its nicious influence from rain or dew. This rowen is of great use all winter. Chop it up, boil it and mix with grain, and it gives the poultry a great variety.-Poultry Monthly.

Protecting Vines From Striped Bettles. The worst enemy the cucumber. squash, pumpkin and melon vines have is the little striped beetle. It not only eats the pulp from the underside of the leaves but destroys the stalk, and if the soil is loose it eats the stalk below the ground; therefore it is a difficult matter to fight it with insecticides. For a garden where less than two dozen hills are planted, the safest and cheapest way to protect the vines is by a covering of mosquito netting or cheese cloth, cut into pieces 18 or 20 inches square. These, to add to their durability, should be first dipped in oil and wrung as dry as possible. Now take a piece of No. 12 or 14 wire.-galvanized if possible.—cut into 20-inch lengths. bend five inches of each end at right angles, and set them two inches into the ground at the corner of each hill, as seen at a a in the engraving. The netting is now spread over this frame, and the edges are covered with a little soil to keep it in place. This thin covering, while admitting plenty of light and rain as it falls, also keeps out the little striped beetles. Cucumbers can thus be protected until they send out laterals, and even if the vines press against the top and sides it does not injure them. Put on the protectors just as the plants are breaking through the ground, removing them in about three weeks. Kept in a dry place when not in use they will do good service eight or ten years. Cultivation of the Sunflower In Russia the sunflower is extensive-Iv grown for the oil of the seeds. It is used for food and cooking, as olive oil has been. The cake left after expressing the oil is ground into meal for feeding cattle, for which it has been found very profitable. This is on account of the easier expressing of the oil from the finest of the meal. A Russian immigrant into Minnesota is now occupied in growing this plant for the same use and has 100 acres planted this spring. The culture in Russia is very profitable and is expected to be so in Minnesota
